Shaping a Good Life: The Pathway to Valued Roles in the Community

Free Online Workshop

Thursday 10 September
10am - 1pm AEST
Online via Zoom

We all deserve the Good things of Life - family, friends, connection to the community, a sense of belonging, opportunities to learn and develop, meaningful work, a place to call home, personal and financial security and the chance to follow dreams and passions.

People with disability belong at the heart of our local community, not on the margins. Valued roles are a key pathway to connection, contribution and belonging. This free introductory workshop touches on some of the key concepts of Social Role Valorisation (SRV), a theory centred on helping people attain and maintain valued social roles.

This online workshop will assist you to:

- Plan a life embedded in the community
- Identify interests that can lead to community participation
- Understand how to choose and develop valued roles.

Guest Presenter:

Alison Wilson (pictured above with her family) is a passionate parent advocate, for her daughter with disability to have a good life alongside her peers. Alison uses the principles of Social Role Valorisation to make this happen and is keen to share this fantastic tool with others.

Who is this workshop for?

People with disability, their family and supporters, including professionals, who want to develop a deeper understanding of how to support a person with disability to plan and live a good life, included in the community. If you're interested in SRV and its application, this workshop is for you!
